"CHINA REVISITED"

A Slide Talk by S. Robert Teitelman

Mr. Teitelman, a Camden lawyer, traveled last October in the Peoples Republic of China.

"It was a different China," he says, "from what I knew when I was there as a Naval Officer following World War II. Today there is an equality of sexes. Work, adequate food and good health care are available to all. Yet, despite limited liberties and a still very low standard of living, which is much improved, it appeared that a dignity of life replaced a former sense of hopelessness."

A selection of Mr. Teitelman's striking photographs was recently published in the Discover Magazine of the Philadelphia Bulletin. He is a perceptive traveler and through his journalistic photography, you will walk the Great Wall, tour the Forbidden City, see various silk processes, visit factories, communes, schools and neighborhoods - even witness acupuncture.

Shown with dual projectors an enjoyable experience is enriched.
